

MYSUPPLY PLATFORM

AN END-TO-END DIGITAL
SUPPLY CHAIN PLATFORM

From development to launch, pharma products navigate a dynamic global supply chain with potential changes and delays.

To manage these changes, pharmaceutical companies go to great lengths to understand production status, mitigate risk, and proactively forecast. With integrated data sources, smart analytics, and a collaboration-first approach, mysupply Platform drives attention to where it matters most.

mysupply Platform provides timely visibility and a real time collaboration platform to enable more efficient ways of working, from day-to-day order management and batch tracking, to monthly forecasting. This platform provides users the ability to view the current status of their orders, batches linked to those orders, status detail at the batch level, risks associated with batches and orders, and will allow users to input change requests associated with orders and batches. Customers are also able to identify delays and proactively address critical alerts and traceability of products. mysupply Platform provides near real-time data sharing to enhance transparency, build trust, and encourage collaboration.

patheon

mysupply Platform is an end-to-end digital supply chain platform that provides visibility and collaboration across the full product lifecycle including:

Order management and order submission through platform replacing existing email processes

Live batch tracking displaying the current status of a batch through our internal processes

Forecast submission and analysis to replace existing manual forecast submission and review process

Change request submission submitted directly via platform and linked to specific order or batch

Batch documentation sharing directly via platform and linked directly to batch or order

Analytical results shared directly via platform and linked to batch

Quality deviation notifications shared directly via platform and linked to batch

Shipping information linked directly to batch and order

With timely, informed decisions, mysupply Platform allows pharmaceutical companies to focus on strategic opportunities while deepening relationships with their supply chain partners and unlocking next-level product delivery opportunities.