Thermo Fisher

DELIVERED WITH

patheon

Supporting global clinical trials during the COVID-19 outbreak requires comprehensive transportation management

C

Clinical trials require complex transportation plans which provide assurance that all products will get to their final destination on time and in full. To minimize disruption during a disease outbreak, having comprehensive transportation management is critical.

Constant communication to keep clients informed

Proactive track & trace on shipments

Real time updates on closures and quarantines

Creative solutions for alternate routing to ensure delivery despite global emergencies Access to a global transportation network

Customs & regulatory (guidance & facilitation

┿

Cold Chain needs: temperature control through route changes

Solutions and support from transportation partners

- Global network of couriers gives access to more options
- Know when, where and why shipments delays happen
- Intervention from on-theground support teams can save at-risk shipments