

patheon

Cold chain services for clinical trial success

Advancements in innovative therapeutics and acceleration toward decentralized clinical trials have highlighted the critical importance of the cold chain in the packaging, storage, and distribution of temperature-sensitive pharmaceutical products. Temperature excursions or incorrect handling can result in product waste or loss of important clinical trial data.

Can your cold chain management capabilities support your advanced clinical trial needs?

Put our 35+ years of cold chain experience to work for you.
Contact your local Thermo Fisher Scientific representative to learn more.